CFD and leveraged FX trading is not suitable for all investors. If in doubt, please seek independent expert advice. When considering the benefits, you should also consider the risks. CFD and leveraged FX trading requires the deposit of a small percentage of the total trading value (margin). The leverage associated with CFD and leveraged FX trading facilitates trading in larger size compared to traditional full value trading. An adverse movement in the underlying instrument can quickly expose you to losses in excess of the initial deposit. See Risk Disclosure Statement for more complete information.
